REVIVAL DRAWS VAST CROWDS

Not since Sam Jones' former visit to Paducah, ten years ago, has such a revival of religion swept over the city as is sweeping over it at present. It is said that there was never before so large a Saturday night's congregation as the one that gathered the past Saturday to listen to the noted evangelist.

He took his text from I Kings, 2 chap. 1 and 2 verses: "Now the days of David drew nigh that should die, and he charged Solomon his son, saying: 'I go the way of all the earth; be thou strong, therefore and show thyself a man.' His address was principally to the young people and his earnest words went straight to the hearts of his listeners. At the close of his remarks about three hundred went forward asking for the prayers of Christians, that they might live a better life.

Sunday morning was the great union meeting. Long before 10:30, the hour set for the song service, the building was filled, and people continued coming in until the sermon was half finished.

Before Mr. Jones announced his text he said that he understood that up to the time of the first service there had not been one dollar raised to pay the expenses of the meeting, that he supposed the preachers considered it useless to ask for it, as the people paid out entirely too much for whiskey and beer. However, the expenses must be met and the congregation would have it to pay so they might as well do it without any further talk.

After the collection had been taken up Mr. Seagle sang a solo and Mr. Jones then gave out his text, Joshua, 21 Chap. 15 verse, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve, but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

"As we read this book," said he, "we are impressed with God's wonderful goodness and mercy to Joshua. And until in the last verse, it never gives one grateful word from him. But when he does speak, mark you his words, 'Choose ye this day whom ye will serve, but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.'

"As I read these verses the thought comes to me that God has also been wonderfully good to Sam Jones, and praise His holy name, thirty years ago I made my choice, turned my back on sin, and have tried to live a clean, righteous life ever since.

"Now the trouble with you Paducah people is that you go in groups and sets and when it becomes the fashion to do something every one goes in for that thing. And you're all going to hell just because it's fashionable to go. Why the biggest man in your town today is one of those damnable distillers. You're no standard, you dirty devils. You're a little one-horse gang, from snout to tail. You've got no manhood. Here you've got an elder in the Presbyterian church for mayor and he's letting this town drift bellward without a protest. Your manhood's all gone. It's fashionable to tip your hat to the man with the most money. The merchants make no protest—they want trade; the bankers make none—they want deposits; the lawyers—dirty little devils—they'd never protest—and I almost said the preachers. I tell you when you muzzle the preachers you have sounded the death knell of the town. A man who speaks his mind is called a crank. But, as Joshua said, I will be one out of 12, or 6 or 2 to stand by my God and what is right. What do you stand for you little bullet-headed devils you. Have you ever taken a stand to protect your home and loved ones? There's one good thing about it, if the devil gets the whole bunch of you, he won't get much. I'd rather go around with my mouth in a poultice and have my eye

Last Night's Memorable Scene.

The pen is not wielded that can fully describe the scene at the close of Sam Jones' sermon to men last night and the heart that was not touched by it is indeed one of stone.

Standing on the platform in his shirt sleeves, tired and worn out from his hard work of the past few days and a very sick man, tears in his eyes, and his voice shaking with great emotion he told his audience why he, more than any man, alive, had the right to fight the liquor traffic.

He told how when just out of law school he came to Kentucky and married one of her fairest daughters and went Carterville to live. For three years, he said, he was the worst of drunkards—stole the roses from the cheeks of his bride—roses that must never come back. He was made to see the error of his way and reformed, and for 35 years has been fighting the fight for God. "But to this day," he said, "the whiskey appetite is bounding me, bounding me to death and I won't feel safe from drunkard's grave till life's battle is ended."

"Ten years ago my sister went to Atlanta with two of the brightest boys in this world. They found the whiskey habit somehow and both became drunkards of the worst type. One day one of them in a drunken brawl killed his best friend, his chum. He was tried and convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary. When I heard it I went to Atlanta and found my poor, dear sister, heartbroken and a physical wreck from the shock and the doctors saying they could give no encouragement as to her ultimate recovery.

My heart nearly broke when I saw her condition. I promised I would go out to see the boy and went. He was the breathing image of me—as much like me physically as man could be. When he saw me he cried, 'Oh uncle, I'll never touch another drop.' 'My poor boy, why didn't you say that before you caused this great calamity?'

"A few days afterwards someone smuggled some whiskey into the place and he got hold of it. His strength failed him and he fell again—had diarrhea tremens. He slipped into the surgeon's office the next day and got a revolver and put a bullet in his heart. "Has any man more right to talk

Mr. Jones continued in this strain for some ten minutes longer than suddenly took on a more serious tone, and the remainder of his sermon was a plain serious talk on the first part of the text, "Choose ye therefore whom ye will serve." He brought out the fact that a choice was either of two things, and we could not take both. We cannot serve God and mammon, and be urged on his hearers the necessity of making the right choice. Showed the absurdity of trying to do both our own part and God's. If we will only repent of our sins, trust in Him and try to live a better life, God will take care of all the rest. Asking for the prayers of all good people, and urging every one to attend the services, he dismissed them with the benediction.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

When Evangelist Sam Jones said in his announcements Saturday that the "Stump Digger's" sermon, which would be delivered by the Rev. George Stewart on Sunday afternoon was "one of the grandest things that ever fell from mortal lips" he did not fall far short of the truth and those who did not hear it certainly missed a rare treat. "Fine." "The best thing in that line that I ever heard" and such comments were all that could be heard from the congregation as they left the tabernacle.

The text upon which this eloquent discourse is based is found in Habakkuk, the 12 and 15 verses: "Woe unto him that buildeth a house with blood, and establisheth a city by iniquity; woe unto him that giveth his neighbor a drink; that pouseth thy bottle to him, and maketh him drunken also."

Mr. Stewart began his discourse by speaking of the appearance and condition of our city on the Sabbath day—its open saloons, its hawdy houses, and the many other things that were a disgrace to the town and community. Spoke of the dark clouds hanging over country, clouds laden with sor-

Big Engine to Come Here for Repairs at Once.

Mr. C. J. Travis, Inspector of Bridges, Was Here on a Regular Inspection Tour.

MR. H. R. DILL TO REST UP

Engine No. 1001 will arrive in this city some time today for repairs. This is the largest engine on the Illinois Central and no doubt will attract a large crowd to the shops.

The engine has been running between Cairo and Memphis and "died" at a little station on the Memphis division yesterday. Something has gone wrong with the flue of the big machine and she will be repaired here. This is the largest type of engine the road owns and is the class of engine that will be run between here and Louisville when the fast schedule is inaugurated. The wheels are over six feet tall and a good sized man looks like a dwarf beside the engine as compared with his size and the ordinary engine. The big machine will be brought to the city today, this afternoon probably, and will be run into the shop for immediate repairs.

Mr. T. A. Banks, trainmaster of the Louisville division of the I. O., was in the city this morning. He will immediately go to the Evansville division to act as superintendent of that division temporarily, in the place of Superintendent H. R. Dill, who will be off on a three weeks' vacation.

Mr. O. J. Travis, chief inspector of bridges for the Illinois Central, was in the city today and went up to Clark's river to inspect the new bridge just completed.

Mr. William McCreary, the traveling engineer of the Louisville and Memphis divisions of the I. O., was in the city this morning on business.

Mr. Charles Sugars, of the master machinist's office of the local I. O., went to Benton yesterday to visit friends. He returned last night.

Mr. Roy Porter, the night caller of the local I. O. shops, was ill last night. His place was filled by Mr. Dick Leeman, the day caller.

Supervisor W. O. Waggener is in the city today.

POLICE COURT

A Few Sinners Had Their Innings This Morning.

Felony Cases Were Not Tried, But Misdemeanors Were Disposed of.

The case against Charles Ashley, the white man arrested at New Madrid, Mo., on charge of stealing a raft of poles belonging to Riglesberger, was continued until Wednesday on account of the absence of witnesses.

The case against Henry Davis, colored, charged with stealing a pair of shoes and selling them to Mrs. Annie Klein for 40 cents, claiming that they were his own, was left open. He is charged with obtaining money by false pretenses.

The case against Kirk Davis and Fred Cooper, colored, for beating a Frank Chapman was fined $1 and costs for a plain drunk.

Laura Hillman was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct.

Lee Overall and Mattie Martin, for immorality, were fined $20 and costs.

Thomas Simms, for a breach of the peace, was fined $10 and costs.

A case against Oberien Coleman, a one armed negro, charged with disturbing the peace and carrying a pistol concealed, was left open. Officers Lynn and Whitburn arrested him, and a pistol was found on a pallet near the door, where Officer Lynn claimed he saw Coleman drop it. The derkey was raising a row because his step-daughter was late getting in.

FORMER PADUCAH BOY.

MR. BOB ROBINSON, THE MUSICIAN, MARRIES IN SPARTA, ILL.

Mr. Bob Robinson, formerly of the city, but now of Sparta, Ill., was Wednesday married to Miss Essie Tate, one of the most popular and attractive young ladies of that city. She is further one of the best musicians in that portion of the state and comes of a prominent family. Mr. Robinson is well known here, having been one of the leading tailors and musicians. He is a brother of Mr. Geo. Robinson, the well known tailor, and will probably come here soon to pay him a visit. Mr. Robinson's friends here will be pleased to learn of his marriage.

IN COUNTY COURT.

NOTHING OF UNUSUAL INTEREST CONSIDERED TODAY.

County court was held this morning but nothing of importance was done. Appraisements of the following estates were filed: L. D. Roberts, Jr., Mrs. D. N. Lovelace, Mrs. E. B. Berry, Mrs. Ann E. Englert, L. H. Rogers.

Settlements as follows were filed and ordered to lie over: H. F. Lyon, administrator of John Orme; R. F. Ferguson, administrator Sarah Ferguson; Lizzie Parks, administrator Henry Parks; W. B. Weeks, guardian for Benny and Mabel Weeks; H. E. Brookshire, guardian Leus Brookshire; Tobe Gardner, administrator Little Gardner, and W. H. Holland, guardian Joseph Bishop.

NEW MINING COMPANY.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION BEING DRAWN TODAY.

Attorney Will Stanfield, of Mayfield, is in the city drawing up articles of incorporation of the Ozark Zinc and Lead Mining Co. This is a company composed of stockholders from Paducah and Pope county, Ill., where the land is situated. There are 1000 acres of land in all and lead has been discovered in paying quantities. Mr. Pete Burnett, of the city, is one of the local stockholders and incorporators. The company will have a capital stock of $300,000.

OAR STRIKE OVER.

New Orleans, Oct. 13—The street car strike, which for two weeks had effectively tied up all the cars, was settled last night, the men agreeing to return to work on a basis of 20 cents an hour and ten hours' work. The governor had threatened to have all the militia out.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Maula, Oct. 13—The Sultan of Bacolos, Mindanao, has rejected the friendly overtures of Gen. Sumner and has written a letter in which he says he wants war, and wants it quick. Forces will be sent to attend to him.

THE RIGHT ONES.

Lexington, Oct. 13—Oland O'Brien of Memphis and Earl Whitney of Nashville are in jail here for the murder of A. B. Ohinn, whose house they attempted to burglarize, and are undoubtedly the right ones. One is slightly wounded. Both have bad records.

DEATH AT POOR FARM.

Francis Green, colored, age 52, died of dropsy at the county poor farm yesterday and will be buried today.

A NEW QUESTION

The City to Retain its Option on the Water Works.

A Vote to Be Taken on a Twenty Year Contract for Fire Hydrants.

ORDINANCE BEING RUSHED

A new ordinance has been introduced for adoption by local boards authorizing a vote by the people in November on the question of amending the city's contract with the Paducah Water company. The ordinance passed twice by the lower board and once by the board of aldermen provided that the people vote on a repeal of the paragraph clause of the franchise.

Saturday night the board of aldermen met and passed a new ordinance. It eliminates the provision for a vote on the repeal of the option clause, and the city will consequently retain her option. The new ordinance provides for a vote on the question of whether or not the city shall make a new contract with the water company to run for twenty years, and fix the hydrant rental for the city at a uniform rate of $25 each a year. Some of the hydrants run for three years yet, and the saving to the city will be about $7,500 a year for three years on these.

The company will put in the filtration plant if the question carries before the people in November, and will relinquish its claim of $40 a year rental for hydrants for the three years longer the contract has to run. The only thing it will get will be a contract for twenty years for fire hydrants at $25 each a year. The city will secure the filtration plant, get a reduction of rental and retain its option to purchase every five years.

The board of aldermen met again this morning and gave second passage to the ordinance and the councilmanic board will meet this afternoon and give first passage to it. It will meet again Tuesday to give final passage to it. The reason there is haste is because the question to be voted on must be certified to before the authorities twenty days before the election, and tomorrow will be the last day.

The ordinance fixing the bonds of the city jailer and the turnkey at $2,000 and $1,000 respectively, the ordinances regulating the public backs and the extension of the time on the beginning of work on the Paducah, Cairo and Northwestern railroad were given second passage by the board of aldermen this morning.

Mr. Harry G. Tandy of Frankfort is in the city on a visit to his wife and daughter, and will remain until Wednesday.

THE POLICE BOARD

Monthly Meeting Will be Held Here This Evening at the City Hall.

Officer Hammond Laid Off for Going into a Saloon on Sunday—

New Firemen.

FIRE DEPARTMENT RULES UP

One policeman has lost his job as a result of Rev. Sam Jones' meeting. Last night Rev. Jones took from his pocket a paper certifying that the New Richmond bar was open Sunday afternoon and several men were there in it, among them a policeman wearing badge 32.

After the meeting was over everybody was asking everybody else who wore the unlucky 32. The police commissioners were asked and the city hall was telephoned. It is remarkable how much curiosity was exhibited over the incident, and finally the police commissioners telephoned to the city hall and learned that Officer Joe Hammond was adorned with the fatal insignia. He was ordered laid off when he reported for duty.

Officer Hammond, who was formerly a motorman, was not on duty at the time he is alleged to have been in the saloon, but his superiors promptly declared that he had no business in a saloon, especially on Sunday, and when he reported for duty at midnight he was suspended. He said he was there on business.

His case will be investigated tonight by the police commissioners, who hold their regular meeting, and if found that he was in the saloon he will no doubt be discharged from the force. The commissioners have practically stated as much.

The commissioners, Messrs. John Bonds, R. R. Sutherland, Pete Rogers and M. W. Clark, will also tonight elect two stationmen for the fire department to take the places of Moss Connell and John Bryant, resigned. John Harvey, an extra, will get one of the positions.

The board will consider the case of Assistant Fire Chief W. E. Angusine, who after half a century of faithful service finds himself unable to longer attend to the duties. The city solicitor has decided that he cannot be legally pensioned, and the board does not know what to do with the popular assistant chief.

Tonight new rules will be made for the fire departments, and a new police officer probably appointed to succeed Officer Hammond.

DO YOU WANT TO YAWN?

Feel cold shiverings, aching in the bones, lack of energy, headache, and great depression? These symptoms may be followed by violent headache, high fever, extreme nervousness, a condition known as malaria. Herbine cures it. Take it before the disease gets a fair hold, though it will work in one in any stage. J. A. Hopkins, Manchester, Kan., writes: "I have used your great medicine, Herbine, for several years. There is nothing better for malaria, chills and fever, headache, biliousness, and for a blood-purifying tonic, there is nothing as good." 50c at DuBois, Kohl and Co.

PAPER TO BE SOLD.

COL. W. W. MARTIN'S CONTINUED ILLNESS RESULTS IN ANNOUNCEMENT.

Colonel W. W. Martin, editor of the Tale of Two Cities, of Eddyville, has been ill for several weeks, and it will be several weeks longer before he is able to be out. His paper is now offered for sale, as he is unable to look after it. Editor Martin's many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

"IT GOES RIGHT TO THE SPOT."

When pain or irritation exists on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment will give prompt relief. "It goes right to the spot," said an old man who was rubbing it in, to cure his rheumatism. C. R. Smith, proprietor Smith House, Tennessee, Texas, writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for several years, and have found it to be a fine remedy for all aches and pains, and I recommend it for pains in the throat and chest." 25c at DuBois, Kohl and Co.

Misses Lucy and Lizzie Ord of Mayfield were in the city yesterday attending the Sam Jones meetings. They returned this morning.

IT'S THE TRUTH

Tell a man it's a food and he doesn't want to pay for it. Tell him it's a medicine and he says it doesn't look like it. Then tell him it's both a food and a medicine and he thinks you're playing some game on him.

Yet these are the facts about Scott's Emulsion of pure cod-liver oil. It is the cream of cod-liver oil, the richest and most digestible of foods. The food for weak stomachs. The food for thin bodies and thin blood.

But that's only half the story. Scott's Emulsion is also a good medicine. It gives new life and vigor to the whole system and especially to the lungs.

PADUCAHANS NOTICED.

PICTURES IN LOUISVILLE TIMES—EX-PADUCAH BECOMES A PROMOTER.

Several Paducahans were pictured in Saturday's Louisville Times. In addition to a group of local bankers who are to assist in the entertainment of visitors at the State Bankers' association this week, the Times contained a splendid half-tone of Miss Aline Bagby, who this week leaves for New York to prepare for the stage.

The Times said of two former Paducahans:

"LEIGH—Louisville friends have received 'literature' this week which shows that Clint B. Leigh has found time to spare from his journalistic duties in Salt Lake City to become a mining promoter on the side. He is boosting the Toltec Mining company, of which he is a director, and offers to let his Kentucky friends in on the gromni floor. The most impudent of them can take advantage of the offer, for the terms are only 5 cents per share, in payments of 10 per cent per month. Clint is a philanthropist as well as a money devil and promoter."

"DILLDAY—The departure of Mr. N. J. Dillday to Indianapolis will be regretted in a wide circle. For eight years he was an energetic and progressive citizen of Louisville. He was interested in all movements for the city's welfare. His friends are certain that he will make a big success in his new field."

Yesterday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch contained a picture of the laying of the corner stone of the Carnegie library and pictures of Messrs. W. F. Paxton, George O. Thompson, Congressman Charles K. Wheeler and Hon. Charles Reed, speaker of the board of councilmen. The article made very complimentary mention of Paducah, and was by a staff correspondent.

MOTHERS.

Who would keep their children in good health, should watch for the first symptoms of worms, and remove them with White's Crean Vermifuge. It is the children's best tonic. It gets digestion at work so that their food does them good, and they grow up healthy and strong. 25c at DuBois, Kohl and Co.

ADVANCE IN COAL.

There will be an advance in coal in Paducah Wednesday to 12 cents for nut and 13 cents for lump, by all dealers. The instructions arrived Saturday evening. The increase is due to the increase in demand, which has reduced the supply and is only one cent.

BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXIONS.

Are spoiled by using any kind of preparation that fills the pores of the skin. The best way to secure a clear complexion, free from all blemishes, pimples, blotches, etc., is to keep the liver in good order. An occasional dose of Herbine will cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, and so establish a clear, healthy complexion. 50c at DuBois, Kohl and Co.

The Queen City marine ways at Cincinnati have been bought by Capt. Edward of Jeffersonville, Ind., for $25,000. Capt. Fred Hartweg and four associates, the holders of the stock, disposed of their holdings in the plant.

A number of shantyboats are floating south for the winter.

The Dussey arrived at 12 o'clock today from Tennessee river with a tow of ties.

The Mandie Kilgore arrived yesterday from Tennessee river with a tow of ties and is now at Brookport unloading.

The I. N. Hook arrived yesterday from Tennessee river with ties and will probably go out again today or tomorrow.

The Charleston is at Joppa today and will be up this afternoon or tonight to take on freight preparatory to leaving Tuesday night for Tennessee river.

The French floating theater and towboat, which have been on the ways for the past several days, were let down into the river Saturday late and will leave this afternoon for Metropolis, resuming regular business.

The Florence Marmet gronned with her tow of twelve coal barges at Twin creek a few miles below Enna Vista. At the last reports four barges were sunk, while the others swung out into the channel and retarded the passage of the boats behind her.

The Joe Fowler arrived this morning from Evansville and went into the Cairo trade in place of the Richardson, which is now back in the Evansville trade. The Richardson and Dudley will now alternate between Evansville and Paducah and traveling by river will be much improved by a boat every day.

The towboat L. H. Burhman, Capt. Scott Paris, having been thoroughly overhauled and put in perfect order, came to Louisville and leaves for Cincinnati. She will leave there with five barges for the Barrett line, two for the company and will get three at Cannelton. She goes to Cairo and Tennessee river.

A correspondent asks: "Where is Coney Island situated above Cincinnati?" There is, a few miles above Cincinnati on the Kentucky shore, a summer resort called "Coney Island," after the famous Eastern resort of that name. There is no "island" there or thereabouts, and could just as well be called "Coney" without the island.

There is now nearly enough water in the Ohio to make navigation certain, and the Alice Brown and Finley, two of the big Pittsburgh coal steamboats, will leave for that city immediately to bring down tow. They are now making preparations to depart and will be ready by tomorrow, if not sooner. They will carry their tow up will follow in a day or two, just as soon as orders are received to move.

Commodore F. A. Laidley gave the delegates to the meeting of the National Board of Steam Navigation, held in Cincinnati, a ride up and down the river on the Indiana. He also gave them lots to eat and drink. Among the speeches made on the trip, Col. W. W. Hite said among other things: "I hope that we will have more of the meetings and that we may get some more water. For a generation we have been trying to get a few more dams than the one at Pittsburgh. Now that the government is disposed to help this part of the country, which pays about two-thirds of the internal revenue from its tax on celebrated whiskey and other products, we should put our shippers to the wheel and work insistently for the nine foot stage from Pittsburgh to Cairo. If the Ohio river ran by Chicago they would have twenty-five feet instead of the three feet we have." Several other speeches were made, and a vote of thanks was tendered Commodore Laidley for his hospitable treatment to his guests.

Contagious Blood Poison

using the same toilet articles, or otherwise coming in contact with persons who have contracted it.

It begins usually with a little blister or sore, then swelling in the groins, a red eruption breaks out on the body, sores and ulcers appear in the mouth, the throat becomes ulcerated, the hair, eye brows and lashes fall out; the blood becoming more contaminated, copper colored splotches and pustular eruptions and sores appear upon different parts of the body, and the poison even destroys the bones.

S. S. S. is a Specific for this loathsome disease, and cures it even in the worst forms. It is a perfect antidote for the powerful virus that pollutes the blood and penetrates to all parts of the system.

Unless you get this poison out of your blood it will ruin you, and bring disgrace and disease upon your children, for it can be transmitted from parent to child. S. S. S. contains no mercury or potash, but is guaranteed a strictly vegetable compound.

A PASSENGER AT THE DEPOT HAS AN EXCITING TIME.

Depot employees have a great deal to contend with. It is not occasionally, but an every day affair. Yesterday an old fellow who seemed to feel an importance that he doubtless didn't possess, entered the baggage room of a local depot and butting into a crowd of persons waiting their turn to have their baggage checked, wasn't satisfied until the baggageman had told him in terms that were unmistakable in their meaning to "go 'way back and sit down,"—until it came his turn.

When it got up to him, he said he wanted his baggage checked to Louisville. The baggagemaster asked to let him see his ticket. All passengers are required to show tickets before their baggage can be checked. Well, he began to look for the ticket, and he searched first one pocket and then the other. He would slap himself over each pocket and feel carefully every inch of his clothing in the vicinity of each one of the pockets, but he couldn't find the ticket.

Then he began to take out cards, books, letters and other odds and ends from his pocket. Others began to come and stamp impatiently as they waited for the bewildered man to find his ticket. He looked and looked, accused everybody he could think of who happened not to be present of stealing it, and then started the search all over again, but nary a ticket could he unearth in his pockets.

Finally he took off his hat to mop his perspiring brow, and there snugly stuck in the brim so it could be easily found was the missing ticket. He shamefacedly handed it over and got out as quickly as he could.

"Sam," he sharply said to one of the darkies, on the platform as he started away, "do you reckon that baggage of mine will get to Louisville as soon as I do?"

"When did yo' git it checked boss?" asked the darky.

"Just now," he replied.

"Wal, hit'll git dar befo' yo' den. Yo' know de baggage cyah is ahead ob de oide coaches," concluded the negro with a grin, as the hate passenger hurried away gritting his teeth.

MUST OBEY

Residents of the County to be Prosecuted by County Health Board

Penalty Quite Severe for Refusing to have Children Vaccinated.

Local representatives of the state board of health will make it hot for those in the county who have refused to have children vaccinated. An order was issued some time ago, about the time that there was smallpox in certain sections of the county, to have all children vaccinated in compliance with the rules or laws formulated by the board of health as authorized by statute.

A number of people with an erroneous idea of the power of health boards have imagined that they know more about the law than the officials, and have refused to have their children vaccinated, and the result is a number of the schools have had to close.

The statute requiring children to be vaccinated fixes no penalty, leaving the state board to do it, and this has led some to think they cannot be fined. Mr. Theodoro Luttrell, of the county, in order to test the law, refused, and, been warranted. His case comes up tomorrow before County Judge Lightfoot. The question seems to be purely one of law, and the law under which he was warranted is as follows:

Section 2055 of the Kentucky statutes, relative to the county health boards, says: "It shall be the duty of the state board to appoint three or more intelligent citizens residing in each county of this state, who shall constitute a local board. Such boards are empowered, and it shall be their duty, to inaugurate and execute and to require the heads of families and other persons to execute such sanitary regulations as the local board may consider expedient to prevent the outbreak and spread of cholera, smallpox, yellow fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and other epidemic diseases; and to this end may bring the infected population under a prompt and proper treatment during premonitory or other stages of the disease, and said boards are authorized and shall have power to enforce the rules and regulations of the state board of health, and any persons who shall fail or refuse after written notice from the local board or state board to observe or obey the written request, shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars for each day he so fails or neglects."

The county board of health is composed of Drs. Frank Boyd, J. Q. Taylor and H. T. Rivers.

VERY SUCCESSFUL

Over 250 girls in the Biscuit Making Contest.

The Rhodes-Burford Establishment Was a Busy Place

The biscuit making contest at the Rhodes-Burford establishment on North Fourth street Saturday closed at 9 p. m., and during the day attracted a large crowd. There were 251 little misses entered in the contest for the five small Buck raages offered and quite a quantity of biscuits was made.

The children were all between the ages of 6 and 14, and did well. The five winners were: First class, Myrtle Morgan, 416 Ohio street; second class, Katie Stenheiner, 126 South Second street; third class, Eva Bauer, 621 North Sycamore street; fourth class, Frances Lynn, 210 Broadway; fifth class, Vera Johnson, 719 Clark street.

During the contest 200 pounds of flour was used, twenty pounds of lard, five pounds of baking powder, two pounds of soda, one pound of salt and twelve gallons of buttermilk. A total of about 2,500 biscuits were made.

Messrs. J. E. Dye and Louis Barrou, of the Heck Stove Range company, conducted the contest, which began Friday afternoon and ended Saturday night. A picture was taken by Riley and Cook of the class, containing over 300, artistically bunched, and cuts of the photograph will be made and sent all over the country. The contests held in Paducah are always the largest in the country, and a source of much satisfaction to both the Rhodes-Burford company and the Stove company.

The five stoves given away are valued at $12 each, and the contest is decided by three ladies having no children in it, who examine the pans of biscuits and select the best each pan being numbered so the name of the maker is unknown. The stoves are all small, but are excellent for cooking.

Mr. E. W. Bockman furnished the flour used. Last year there were 257 children in the contest here, and over 50,000 copies of the pictures of the class were distributed over the United States.

WEALTH OF HOLLAND'S QUEEN

Youthful Ruler Among the Richest of Royal Personages.

The Queen of Holland is among the richest of royal personages. Part of her enormous fortune belongs to the crown, while the rest is her private property. The royal estates in Holland and the East (which include the Dutch East Indies) are also of great value. On her marriage with Prince Henry the young queen set aside twenty millions of marks, the arrangement being that the interest, which is nearly £30,000 a year, will be at his own disposal, while the capital is ultimately to pass to the younger children of the marriage. If there are no children, Prince Henry is to have absolute power of disposing by will of five millions of marks, while the remainder will eventually revert to the queen's estate.

Strange Place for Wedding.

How many people know that Lord Rosebery was married to the wealthiest heiress in the British Kingdom in a London workhouse? The registrar's office where the ceremony was performed was in St. George's, Hanover-square, workhouse, in Mount street, the registrar's office and workhouse being then under one roof; and though the usual rites of the church were subsequently observed in Christ church, Down street, the fact remains that the late prelate was married within workhouse walls. Few men, indeed, have ever wed two and a half millions in such a place.

DAILY THOUGHT.

Knowledge comes sometimes by

THE WEATHER.

Fair and cooler tonight and Tues-

OUR ICE HARBOR INTACT.

Our afternoon, contemporary has flung a few more fits over the "danger to Paducah's ice harbor," which leaves the impression abroad that Paducah is really threatened with something perilous in connection with her celebrated harbor. The Sun has before stated that there was nothing like these wild and woolly vapors and it now says it by authority, the authority of capable men who have fully investigated the scare-crow of our contemporary, and assured the Commercial club and others interested that there is absolutely nothing in the fears expressed. This is the reason the Commercial club has done nothing, and has as a consequence evoked the appellation of "sleepy head" from our esteemed contemporaries. This is the reason Congressman Wheeler has done nothing since he came home and learned the truth. A government engineer, to come down here and inspect this harbor and report on the matter agitated by the above paper would laugh at the stupidity of people foolish enough to place any reliance whatever in such a report. Rivermen here are already laughing at it. The Commercial club has been given every assurance that there is no ground for fear, and for this reason has ignored the bugbear and will doable less concern to ignore it.

As a matter of fact the first of the fear was when some one wrote an article against space from the imagination, painting the desolation and ruin likely to result to Paducah's ice harbor if something wasn't done to stop the islands opposite the city from washing away, and it has been kept up ever since to lend color to the story.
The constant action of water against the shores of the islands is certain to sooner or later wash them away to some extent probably, but it will be many years until there is any perceptible change. The supposed danger to the harbor is from heavy ices of ice in the winter time being driven to this side against boats in the harbor, which would not be possible if over half of the big island were washed away, and would not affect Paducah's ice harbor proper at all.

When ice flows the river is usually high, and the current would carry it past Paducah before a single cake would have time to drift across. Ice flows is only in the Ohio, and never comes on this side of the river.

Paducah's ice harbor is far above
here, and out of the reach of the Ohio river, yet it is made to appear that the ice harbor is in danger. As to the effect of this silly and idle talk,
river editors of other papers write about Paducah's danger and because they have been misled and uninterestedly
do the city irreparable damage.
Steamboatmen at a distance who desire to bring their boats here for the winter may be led to abandon the idea
by the erroneous impressions given out. Every year there is over half a million dollars worth of floating stock brought here for the winter, and thousands of dollars are spent for jars and stores. Paducah waits this to continue and to secure more of it,
which will be impossible if such sinplic stories as that about the harbor being threatened, are not stopped.

Mr. Richard Olney has emerged from his hibernation long enough to criticize the Republican party and attempt to attach the blame for the coal strike to it. He claims that the Republicans both officially and individually regard themselves as above the law, which is untrue, especially in the case of the coal strike, which he claims in substantiation of his charge.

The Republican party and its officials have been the only ones to make an effort to settle the strike. They are within the pale of the law, as are the coal mine operators. The ones who are disobeying the law are the men who will neither work in the mines themselves nor allow anyone else to do it, and who have necessitated the entire militia of Pennsylvania being called out to protect private property and the lives of men who ask only that they be allowed to work for a living in a manner that is satisfactory to themselves. These are the men who are not observing the law, and who are appealing to the American people to contribute by money or sympathy to the encouragement of their agents, which means a prolongation of the strike. There would be coal miners
if men who have refused to work would allow others to work. The Republican party and its officials and members have exerted every effort to settle the strike.

After the song service Mr. Seagle sang "Ninety and Nine" and the song seemed to go to the hearts of all his hearers.

The coats have put a quietus on the "smell fry" stockholders in big corporations. Some of those who owned stock in the steel trust didn't like it because J. Pierpont Morgan was paid ten million dollars for his work in organizing the gigantic corporation. The court decides that individual stockholders cannot be judicially prosecuted for the corporate acts of the directors. That the directors are elected for the purpose of managing the affairs of a corporation,
not against good morals and a good feeling. cannot be questioned by the little fellows. Their acts are legal,
and if they had deemed it advisable to pay
J. P. Morgan a hundred million instead of ten, their economy could not have been questioned.

The coal strike is still on, and it is claimed if it were settled today the coal famine cannot be relieved this winter, as weeks will be required to empty out the mines, no man will work in the mines, no man will work in the steel trust.

Instead of trying to stop the coal strike a lot of people want to mobilize the mine owners because they didn't give in to the strikers. They should remember that neither did the strikers give in to the mine owners.

most all other traveling men can, too.

Similarity of Great Minds.

As a rule one can depend on nature making models which are hard to imitate, especially when it is living animal that are to be considered; yet Vauclusan constructed a duck that could walk, eat and drink, and was all but Nature itself. He was invited to make a snake that would prove effect in the death scene of Cleopatra. When produced it was a marvel of ingenuity, and seemed to be endowed with life. When the famous actress who was impersonating the Egyptian princess was about to raise the snake to her bosom it ran out its forked tongue and hissed. In the midst of the dead silence of expectancy that fell on the house a man in the orchestra
remonstrated in very audible tones: "I am of the same opinion as the serpent."

Some of these officials are saying "if Sam Jones don't quit talking like he does I'm going to smash his mouth!"

Well, say Bnd, when we decide to do

GREAT CROWD OUT

that you'd better order funeral arrangements for your whole family. I haven't a disposition to get my mouth smashed in this town. Catch on!

Most of you never spent a decent Sabbath in your life; Just gather on corners and tell smoky jokes. Why is an old buzzard should pass over you dirty scoundrels' he'd turn his course and say the crowd was too
slinking for him.

He then touched on the practice
the county and city officials have of making the saloon men and prostitutes of the town pay tribute every three months. "It's blackmail, a nasty internal business" he said. If your city needs money have your policemen stand on the corners and knock the people down and take it away from them but don't keep up this damnable practice. Don't your papers publish it?
"Yes, you say. Then the community knows it and ought to call a halt. Your mayor allows this, and he's an elder in the church. Don't let him kick me for talking this way about him boys. And your aldermen!
God pity their polluted souls. They couldn't be elected dog catchers now."

He then took up gambling and adultery in the forceful way he handles everything. "I don't talk decent you say. Well decent talk would be out of place here. If you don't like the talk just leave it, Bnd.

He then spoke of drunkenness and drinking eat gave his audience food for thought for many days. The story of his own life came in aptly and he used it effectively. After the sermon
the scene described above took place
and his audience seemed to leave.
Many called to shake his hand again
and offer congratulations on his sermon, and pledged themselves agaia to better lives. The sheriff and one of the aldermen were among his callers, as also was a saloon keeper who vowed the city couldn't give him a license.

THIS MORNING'S SERMON.

Sam Jones preached at the morning
services today, and had a good crowd.
He took for his text the 18th and 22nd
verse of the Fifty-fifth Psalm, "Cast thy burdens on the Lord and he shall stabilize thee, for he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved and hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me, for there were many with me."

"There are two kinds of trouble,"
he said, "real trouble and imaginary trouble. The imaginary troubles outnumber the real troubles two to one.
The woman is a goose to tramp upon an imaginary trouble. There are lots of geese in this world. If they all had feathers we would have enough to throw at the birds. Yes, and there are a lot of old ganders too.

Some people have the knack of running a trouble machine. They work both hands and feet and the month all at the same time. Don't take your imaginary troubles to God. He won't put out a house that isn't on fire.
He don't fool with fools, there are too
many sensible people in the world.

One thing that is good for home-made trouble is common sense. Your preachers, too, are always borrowing trouble.
Say I'm not as popular as I ought to be. God didn't send him here to seek popularity. The preacher that wants popularity is like the drankard that wants another dram.
The world is coming to an end, some one says. I'd like to know how the world can come to an end when it's roaring.

"Some of your society women don't want any children. Well, the women that don't want any ain't fit to have 'em. She has no heart, and I would as soon shake the tail of a dead fish as to shake her hand. Some of you folks say, 'Mr. Jones, you teach on things you ought to leave alone.' Yes, 'tis true. I talk on vulgar things and don't get but 10,000 people to come to hear me. Your nice preachers can't get 300.

"Troth gets you down more than work. Quit worryin. If you can help a thing, go along and help it out; if you can't just crack your heels and let her go just the same. That's what I do. But I have common sense.
That's why I'm different from other people.

"Do you know the secret of a happy married life? I asked an old man who was celebrating his golden wedding
that question one day, and he said: 'I'll tell you.
When I married my wife the next morning I looked over the room and I saw two chairs with clothes on them, one a dress and the other breeches, and I said to my wife,
'Now you get up and take your clothes.' Well, she took the dress and left me the breeches, and I've been wearing them ever since."

"Cast thy burdens on God and he will sustain thee. Bring all your troubles and lay them at His feet and He will help you carry them."

He said the best antidote for iron-ble is work. He's tried it for thirty-five years and found it so.

He closed his sermon with the proposition that all who could say, "Brother Jones, I'm pulling straight" pray
for me," to come and shake his hands,
and a large number came forward.

A FEW SIDE LIGHTS.

A great many people may wonder where all the congregation of men at the Sam Jones meeting last evening came from, but no one knows. They were there, and there were more of them than there is male population in the city of Paducah. Hundreds of them doubtless came in on the trains and boats, and many from the country in wagons. The corners are filled with strangers all day, except during the services, which indicates that there are many strangers here. Some of them haven't been to town in years,
according to the boarding house keepers,
missing circuses, Buffalo Bill and even the carnivals.

Jack Whitesides, sometimes called
"Three-fingered Jack" is one of Sam
Jones' converts. For nearly a year
Whitesides has tried to get a saloon license, and the last time was a week ago, when the council granted it, but the board of aldermen shied at it. The police department fought the granting of a license to him because they thought he would not run an orderly place. Whitesides now declares that he would not have a saloon license if one were presented to him, and is out of the whiskey business for good. He went up and told Rev. Jones as much yesterday.

It is amusing to think of the curiosity that the average person possesses.
Last night after the Sam Jones service the only question heard on the streets
was, "What policeman has badge 32?" About half a hundred men around Dr. John Bonds' drug store and asked him. They came in droves, in pairs and alone, and Dr. Bonds, who is one of the police commissioners, finally had to make himself scarce. It was almost as bad at the city hall, and every policeman who bobbed up his head was either stopped or closely questioned to learn the number of his badge.

Former Mayor James M. Lang, who thought he had left trouble behind when he went out of office, has learned that there are a whole lot of people in Paducah who don't know who is mayor. He was very much chagrined to learn at the revival last night that a lot of fellows think he is still mayor, and those within reach would dig him in the ribs when Sam Jones would hit the officials unusually hard and tell them they wouldn't stand it if they were mayor. He laughingly says he wishes they all knew that he is out of office, and what was said didn't apply to him.

People with "young 'uns" ought to leave them at home. The little ones
don't understand anything that's said
and neither can anyone around them
very often.

The street cars are doing a big busness, but hundreds and hundreds of people don't have time to wait for a car. They start about supper time in order to get a place.

At the Court of Japan.
There is no barbaric splendor about the court of Japan, nor does the emperor insist on fantastic forms of homage.
He is just a plain individual, his guests
are received standing, and he enters freely into conversation with all. There is scarcely a subject that does not interest him or one on which he is not well informed. A delightful host, it is his custom to surround himself with clever men—men who are the shining lights of their professions.
Engineers, artists, musicians, writers,
soldiers, scientists—every class of person who has won distinction is welcome at the royal table, for it is one of the characteristics of his majesty that in the distribution of his favors
he is thoroughly impartial.

Count Tolstol's Wife.
The Countess Tolstol, in her way,
is almost as wonderful as her famous husband. Her individuality and her theories are as marked and distinct as his. Nor does she always agree with him in his views. In fact, she most strenuously opposed his tirade against the copyright system. Neither is she a blind admirer of the count's style and stories, but often freely and somewhat warmly attacks both, the result being a rather heated argument.

The countess is a woman of broad training and ripe education. Strong in her character and great in her ability, she is the type of woman who would best understand a man of her husband's kind, and who would be able to further the best in him and both their lives.

INTEREST IN PROPERTY SOLD.

Sheriff Potter this morning sold one-sixth interest in the property, to satisfy a judgment, in the case of T. Schwab, assignee, against Samuel Myles. The judgment for $443 was filed many years ago, but the execution brought nothing. The defendant subsequently came into the property and the execution was then made and the property sold. Louis Holt was the purchaser, at $58.58.

STRIKE MAY BE SETTLED.

New York, Oct. 13.—At noon today a conference of representatives of the coal roads was assembled in the office of Chairman Thomas of the Erie. President Traesdale of the Delaware and Lackawanna, when he arrived, said: "A conference is to be held and it will be an important one. It may be productive of immediate results in the situation."

COAL FLEETS READY.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 13.—Eight and a half feet of water is expected here by tomorrow, and 3,000,000 bushels of coal will no doubt be shipped south. Some river men expect ten feet, in which event 6,000,000 bushels will be released.

ASSASSINATION IN ITALY.

It appears from an official statistical publication that in 1889 3,966 persons were murdered in Italy, which means 13.49 per 100,000 inhabitants. Deputy Fortunato, commenting on this fact to the chamber of deputies, remarked that every year some 4,000 persons fall victims to the stiletto and revolver, as many as were killed at the battle of Adowab. About 90,000 were wounded by assassins. This statement, however, is somewhat exaggerated because no distinction is made between murder and manslaughter. Still, Italy enjoys an unavoidable pre-eminence in the criminal destruction of life.

FOOLED HIM.

BUT IN THE PLEASANT WAYS OF PEACE.

Good thing some men are married. Their wives keep a sensible watch over them and have a way to help overcome their troubles.

Mr. E. Lewis of Shaniko, Ore., was located for several years at various points in South America, and fell into the native custom of frequently drinking coffee. He says: "I took to using it the same as those nervous, excitable people in South and Central America. They make very black coffee and it becomes more or less an intoxicating beverage. At the end of about four months I began having severe sick headaches and nervousness, but supposed it was from the tropical sun. At last my wife became alarmed at my headaches and stomach trouble. She tried to induce me to quit drinking coffee, laying my trouble to that, but I continued to use it.

She read of Postum Food Coffee, and ordered some from the States, but kept it a secret from me. The very first time she made it, when I came for my coffee and roll I noticed that peculiar, pleasant flavor of Postum, and asked her what it was. She said it was a new brand of coffee and asked me how I liked it. I tried two cups of it with rich 'Leche-de-Obena,' which is used by everyone as milk in Panama, and thought it excellent. After a couple of days my headaches stopped, and in a short while my nervousness disappeared as if by magic. I have been using nothing but Postum for the past year, and have been completely cured, and my wife has also been cured of constipation by changing to Postum, and we shall never go back to coffee again."

STOLE IRONCLAD BY PIECEMEAL

At Least, Nothing Was Left that Could Be Carried Away.

The most audacious piecemeal robbery on record was that effected by some Peruvian irregulars during the war with Chile, in the summer of 1873.

For ten of the Huascar, which was cruising along the Chilean seaboard, and which for power and weight of metal was infinitely superior to anything the latter nation had then afloat, the Chilean man-of-war Pareda was temporarily driven away in a creek some fifty miles south of Valparaiso; and, as fighting men were urgently needed elsewhere, her crew were taken off, and she was left in charge of a corporal's guard of nine.

These were overpowered one dark night and the bodies tumbled overboard; after which the adventurers proceeded to carry away the whole of the internal fittings of the ship. And this apparently impossible task they actually accomplished.

The Pareda's guns, her stores and ammunition, 1,200 stands of small arms, even her machinery and boilers, were lowered into a number of fruit boats which had been chartered for the purpose, and safely carried northward into Peruvian waters, where they were afterwards used to outfit another vessel.

And when, some months later, the Huascar having been sunk by the Chilean fleet, the lawful owners of the Pareda came to look for her, they found only the empty shell of a ship, silent and deserted, and without as much portable property aboard as would have sufficed to fill a decent-sized portmanteau.—Stray Stories.

DIDN'T HANDLE THAT KIND.

MILWAUKEE MAN ASKS FOR MARRIAGE LICENSE IN A DRUG STORE.

An individual, who from his clothes and the dinner pail which he carried appeared to be a laboring man, recently walked into a drug store on Eleventh avenue and requested to be given a marriage license.

"You'll have to go to the city hall to get that," said the druggist.

"I don't see why. Isn't my money good here. I'm in a hurry, too."

"We don't handle that kind of license," answered the drug store man.

"Well, I was told I could get one here sure, and that d—n justice won't marry me without a license," angrily snapped the fellow as he walked out.

The druggist said that people often come in with requests which would make a store man smile, "and if you do laugh they get mad," he concluded.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE ONE HITCH.

James Russell Lowell was wont to tell how he met an acquaintance (of dubious standing) whose cheerful face and happy demeanor led him to ask the cause of such exuberant folly. "Why," said the genial smiler, "I've discovered a way to make my fortune. We all know that the reason for the fine flavor of the wild duck is the wild celery on which it feeds. Now I purpose to feed it to the domestic duck and supply the market."

Some weeks later, on meeting his acquaintance, Mr. Lowell found him quite depressed and inconsolable.

"Why are you looking so unhappy? I thought, the last time I saw you, that you were on the point of making your fortune with ducks. Wouldn't it work?"

"No," was the reply, "the d—d things won't eat it."—Atlantic Monthly.

A DOUBTFUL PHRASE.

Rev. Dr. D. Parker Morgan, who recently celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his rectorship of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York city, usually prefacing his chance notices and announcements by reference to the Almighty such as "Please God," "God willing," "If it be the will of the Lord." A few winters ago Rev. Dr. Van De Water delivered a course of lectures in the church. On the Sunday previous to the final lecture of the series Dr. Morgan stated that, "Please God, Dr. Van De Water will give his last lecture in this church next Friday evening." The curates and some of the parishioners smiled at this peculiar phraseology.

CHAPTER X.

WHAT CAME TO SLAVIN.

BILLY BREEN'S legacy to the Black Rock mining camp was a new league, which was more than the old league remained. The league was new in its spirit and in its methods. The impression made upon the camp by Billy Breen's death was very remarkable, and I have never been quite able to account for it. The mood of the community at the time was peculiarly susceptible. Billy was one of the oldest of the old timers. His decline and fall had been a long process, and his struggle for life and manhood was striking enough, to arrest the attention and awaken the sympathy of the whole camp. We instinctively side with a man in his struggle for freedom, for we feel that freedom is native to him and to us. The sudden collapse of the struggle altered the men with a deep pity for the beaten man and a deep contempt for those who had tricked him to his doom; but, though the pity and the contempt remained, the gloom was relieved and the sense of defeat removed from the men's minds by the transforming glory of Billy's last hour.

The impression of Nixon's words upon Slavin was as nothing compared with that made by Geordie Crawford. It was not what he said so much as the manner of awful solemnity he carried. Geordie was struggling conscientiously to keep his promise to "not be 'ard on the boy" and found considerable relief in remembering that he had agreed "to leave them the the Almighty." But the manner of leaving them was so solemnly awful that I could all understand and appreciate at full value the spirit that breathed through the words of the dying man: "Don't be 'ard on 'em. They didn't mean no 'arm." And this was the new spirit of the tongue.

It was this spirit that surprised Slavin into sudden tears at the grave's side. He had come braced for curses and vengeance, for all knew it was he who had doctored Billy's lemonade, and instead of vengeance the message from the dead that echoed through the voice of the living was one of pity and forgiveness.

Geordie stopped short and, saying,

"We'll just gang in a maccute," passed through the crowd and up to the bar.

"Michael Slavin," began Geordie, and the men stared in dead silence, with their glasses in their hands. "Michael Slavin, I promised the lad I'd bear ye no ill will, but just leave ye the the Almighty, an' I want the tell ye the: I'm leavin' me wurrd. But," and he raised his hand, and his voice became supernaturally solemn, "his child upon yer han'". Do ye no' see it?"

His voice rose sharply, and as he pointed Slavin instinctively glanced at his hands, and Geordie added:

"Aye, nu' the Lord will require it o' ye at' yer hoose."

They told me that Slavin shivered as if taken withague after Geordie went out, and, though he laughed and swore, he did not stop drinking till he sank in a drunken stupor and had to be carried to bed. His little French Canadian wife could not understand the change that had come over her husband.

"He's like our bear," she confided to Mrs. Major, to whom she was showing her baby of a year old. "He's not kees me one tam day. He's mos' hawful bad. He's not even look at de baby."

And this seemed sufficient proof that something was seriously wrong, for she went on to say:

"He's think more for dat leel baby dan for de whole worl'. He's think more for dat baby dan for me." But she shrung her pretty little shoulders in depreciation of her speech.

"You must pray for him," said Mrs. Major, "and all will come right."

"Ah, madame," she replied earnestly, "every day, every day, I pray la sainte Vierge et tous les saints for him."

"You must pray to your Father in heaven for him."

"Ah, ou, I weel pray." And Mrs. Major sent her away bright with smiles and with new hope and courage in her heart.

She had very soon need of all her courage, for at the week's end her baby fell dangerously ill. Slavin's anxiety and fear were not relieved much by the reports the men brought him from time to time of Geordie's ominous forebodings; for Geordie had no doubt that the Avenger of blood was hot upon Slavin's trail, and as the sickness grew he became confirmed in this conviction. While he could not be said to find satisfaction in Slavin's impending affliction, he could hardly hide his complacency in the promptness of Providence in vindicating his theory of retribution.

But Geordie's complacency was somewhat rudely shocked by Mr. Craig's answer to this theory one day.

"You read your tible to little profit, it seems to me, Geordie, or perhaps you have never read the Master's teaching about the tower of Siloam. Better rend that and take that warning."

"Geordie gazed after Mr. Craig as he turned away and muttered:

"The toor o' Siloam, is it? Aye, I ken fine about the toor o' Siloam an' about the toor o' Babel as weel, an' I've read, too, about the blasphemous Herod an' sic like. Mon, but he's a be' he'd haddie an' lacks disrecreetion."

"What about Herod, Geordie?" I asked.

"About Herod?" with a strong tinge of contempt in his tone. "About Herod? Mon, ha'e ye no' rend in the Screentura about Herod nu' the wur-rums in the wame o' him?"

"Oh, yes, I see," I hastened to answer.

"Aye, a fule can see what's flapped in his face," with which bit of proverbial philosophy he suddenly left me. "I'll tell the chance of a starved himself, in Mr. Craig's presence at least, with ominous head shakings, equally aggravating and impossible to answer.

That same night, however, Geordie showed that with all his theories he had a man's true heart, for he came to Mrs. Major to say:

"Ye'll be needed over yonder. I'm thinkin'."

"Why? Is the baby worse? Have you been in?"

"Na, na," replied Geordie cautiously: "I'll n'd' gang where I'm no' wanted, but you purr thing ye can hear outside weel'd an' inanit."

"She'll maybe need ye to me," he went on dutifully to me. "Ye're a kin' o' doctor, I hear," not committing Geordie to any opinion as to my professional value.

But Slavin would have none of me, having got the doctor sober enough to prescribe.

The interest of the camp in Slavin was greatly increased by the illness of his baby, which won to him as the apple of his eye. There were a few who, impressed by Geordie's profound convictions upon the matter, were inclined to favor the retribution theory and connect the baby's illness with the vengeance of the Almighty. Among these few was Slavin himself, and, goaded by his remorseful terrors, he sought relief in drink. But this brought him deeper and deeper gloom, so that between her suffering child and her savagely despairing husband the poor mother was desperate with terror and grief.

"Ah, madame," she sobbed to Mrs. Major, "my heart is broke for him. His heet noting for tree days, but Jia dreen, dreen, dreen."

The next day a man came for me in haste. The baby was dying, and the doctor was drunk. I found the little one in a convulsion lying across Mrs. Major's knees, the mother kneeling beside it, wringing her hands in dumb agony, and Slavin standing near, silent and suffering. I glaced at the bottle of medicine upon the table and asked Mrs. Major the dose and found the baby had been poisoned. My look of horror took Slavin something was wrong, and, striding to me, he caught my arm and asked:

"What is it? Is the medicine wrong?"

I tried to put him off, but his grip tightened till his fingers seemed to reach the bone.

"The dose is certainly too large. But let me go. I must do something."

He let me go at once, saying in a voice that made my heart sore for him: "He's killed my baby; he has killed my baby." And then he cursed the doctor with awful curses and with a look of such murderous fury on his face that I was glad the doctor was too drunk to appear.

His wife, hearing his curses and understanding the cause, broke out into wailing hard to bear.

"Ah, mon petit ange! It is dat whees-dy's deek's mon baby. Ah, mon cher, mon amour, mon, mon, mon ange!" till Slavin put his arms about her and took her away, for as she was whispering her farewell to her baby, with a little answering sob, passed into the house with many rooms.

"Whist, Am'cay, durin', don't cry for the baby," said her husband. "Sure it's better off than the rest of us. And didn't you hear what the minister said about the beautiful place it is? And sure he wouldn't lie to us at all."

But a mother cannot be comforted for her firstborn son.

An hour later Nixon brought Father Goulet. He was a little Frenchman with gentle manners and the face of a saint. Craig welcomed him warmly and told him what he had done.

"That is good, my brother," he said, with gentle courtesy, and, turning to the mother, "Your little one is safe."

Behind Father Goulet came Nixon softly and gazed down upon the little quiet face, beautiful with the magic of death. Slavin came quietly and stood beside him. Nixon turned and offered his hand, but Slavin, moving slowly back, said:

"I did you a wrong, Nixon, and it's a sorry man I am this day for it."

"Don't say a word, Slavin," answered Nixon hurriedly. "I know how you feel. I've got a baby too. I want to see it again. That's why the break hurt me so."

"As God's above," replied Slavin earnestly, "I'll hinder you no more."

They shook hands, and we passed out.

We laid the baby under the pines, not far from Billy Green, and the sweet spring wind blew through the gap and came softly down the valley, whispering to the pines and the grass and the budding flowers of the new life coming to the world. And the mother must have heard the whisper in her heart, for as the priest was saying the words of the service she stood with Mrs. Major's arms about her, and her eyes were looking far away beyond the purple mountain tops, seeing what made her smile. And Slavin, too, looked different. His very features seemed finer. The coarseness was gone out of his face. What had come to him I could not tell.

But when the doctor came into Slavin's house that night it was the old Slavin I saw, but with a look of such deadly fury in his face that I tried to get the doctor out at once. But he was half drunk, and his manner was hideously humorous.

"How do, Idaie? How do, gentlemen?" was his loud, boisterous salutation. "Quite a professional gathering, eh?"

"Reddin' to tell ye all about it," he said, crowding himself into the room before he knew it.

Slavin, who had been crouching in his chair, with hands twitching and eyes glaring, rose and followed, still crouching as he walked.

COMMENT OF THE DAY.

A plain ad. that will add to your savings will give you the plain facts in a way interesting and profitable reading. Occasionally we endeavor to make ads more attractive by placing around them some comments on questions of local interest—setting them in a frame as it were. This, by way of variety, is a very successful method of advertising, as it relieves the monotony of a great array of figures.

This time, however, we give you a plain ad., without gloss or glitter, but it has the one great essential element ever necessary in successful advertising—it states the truth and nothing but the truth.

We advertise not to deceive, but simply to inform the people concerning the numerous good things we have in store for them.

We hereby cordially invite everybody to call on us tomorrow and take advantage of our great special bargain sale of dry goods and furnishings. Our new and elegant dress goods and skirtings are sure to attract your attention. They are the best and latest weaves. Our handsome waistings, beautiful in design and excellent in quality, are things of beauty. They are in plaids, stripes and fancies, and of various shades and colors. You can't afford to miss them at our prices. Our dark ginghams, percales and flannelettes at 8c and 10c a yard, are seldom equalled and never surpassed. It is now time to get your outing flannels. Just see our outlings at 5c, 7c and 10c. You will go no farther. Our dress skirts and walking skirts are products of the best makers. They fit the figure and hang with a graceful "sweep." You get 25 per cent off on all our skirts at our special sale tomorrow. Get a pair or two of our Old Virginia—best bed blankets—and you will sleep soundly regardless of the coal famine. They are wool, indeed, and go from $3.75 to $5.75 for extra sizes. Most ladies know we sell the far-famed Dr. Warner's rust-proof corsets "with all modern improvements." The best corset ever made for health, comfort and durability, 50c, 75c, $1.00 and up, all colors. Special cut pieces on shirts, underwear and all kinds of furnishings. We have some handsome styles yet in Nottingham lace curtains on which you get one-third off.

All who desire the best for the least money should call on us tomorrow. Your visit will be appreciated.

AT HIS POST AGAIN.

DEPUTY COUNTY CLERK HIRAM SMEDLEY HAS RE-COVERED.

Mr. Hiram Smedley is again on duty at the county court house after an absence of several months, occasioned by a severe spell of illness.

Mr. Smedley was taken ill in the early part of the summer of fever and was at the point of death several times. He went to Mont Eagle, Tenn., but was benefited little, returning home several weeks later. He steadily improved until today he is able to resume duty as deputy county clerk. His many friends will be pleased to learn of his recovery.

MARRY IN NASHVILLE.

YOUNG INSURANCE MAN IN PADUCAH TO WED THERE NEXT MONTH.

Yesterday's Nashville American announces the approaching marriage of Mr. John Barbour Gray, of Louisville, to Miss Mary Lanier Scruggs, of Nashville, on Tuesday evening November 18th at the home of the bride there. Mr. Gray is the young insurance man now in the city re-locating the town, and since he came to Paducah a few weeks ago has made a host of friends, who will be anxious to extend congratulations. His bride-to-be is a most charming young lady, and a member of one of Nashville's most prominent families.

DOING WELL.

PROF. WM. DEAL RECEIVES MANY COMPLIMENTS ON HIS ORCHESTRA.

Prof. Wm. Deal, leader of The Kentucky orchestra, has received many compliments of late on his orchestra and is pleased to learn that the class of music he plays is meeting with the approval of the public. He has programmed several pieces by request and his repertoire of pieces is rapidly increasing. He never plays the same piece the second night unless by special request, as he strives to always have a new program. The orchestra has improved wonderfully and is now much stronger than at first.

MARRIED YESTERDAY.

YOUNG MAN OF MARSHALL COUNTY WEDS HERE.

Mr. Horatio Marshall of Gilbertsville and Miss Lola Howard of near Tyler, Ky., a small suburb three miles out from town on the Benton gravel road, were yesterday married at the bride's home by Rev. Duncan of the city, and left immediately after the ceremony for the groom's home in Gilbertsville. Mr. Marshall is a prosperous young farmer and his bride is the daughter of a prominent farmer of this county and both have many friends who will extend to them congratulations.

CLERKS MET.

A PLEASING ADDRESS BY MISS LAMPHERE YESTERDAY.

Miss Emma Lamphere, of Denver, Col., was here yesterday and addressed the local Retail Clerks' Union. Miss Lamphere is the traveling business agent of the clerks' union and the meeting was called especially to hear her talk. The local union was found to be in the best of conditions and flourishing. There was no other business before the union. The audience was unusually large.

KENTUCKY SYNOD.

REV. W. E. CAVE, OF THE CITY LEAVES FOR LEXINGTON TO ATTEND.

Rev. W. E. Cave expects to leave tomorrow to attend the meeting of the synod of Kentucky at Lexington. This will be an eventful week in the history of Kentucky Presbyterianism. The Northern and Southern Synods will unite in commemorating the centennial of the organization. Steps will also be taken towards the establishment of a female school to be under the joint control of the two synods.

SHOOTING IN THE COUNTY.

Residents of near Heath, this county, this afternoon reported to Sheriff Potter that there is a great deal of promiscuous shooting among the negroes working for the railroad company every day, and Saturday night some unknown negro was shot. The sheriff can do nothing except where warrants are sworn out.

DOWN BY THE SEA TONIGHT.

Many comedy dramas have been seen on the local stage recently, but it can be truly said that none have come here more highly recommended than "Down by the Sea," the attraction billed for The Kentucky tonight. It is one of those true pictures of the gaiety and reality of life, lively in sentiment and natural in plot and character delineation. On its presentation in Boston the production was the subject of no little comment on account of the uniform excellence of the players, and the performance was enjoyed and appreciated. The play will be presented here tonight with the same powerful company that was identified with the success of the original production. Many new and up-to-date specialties have been added and a most complete and interesting performance is assured. Seats are selling fast.

NOTICE TO PASSENGERS

BILL POSTERS TO MEET.

Mr. Joe Everich of the local bill posting firm went to Louisville on today to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the bill posting association of the state. The committee convenes tomorrow and business of much importance will be transacted.

One of Seven Wonders.

Wrexham parish church is known as one of the seven wonders of Wales. It dates as a structure from the fifteenth century, and is cathedral-like in its proportions. A "chained" Bible, now kept under lock and key, is among the curiosities, and beside it is a handsomely bound "visitors' book," sent by the students of Yale university, United States, for the use of Yale students visiting the church. In the chuchyard is the tombstone of Eliza Yale, with its quaint epitaph. The Soldiers' chapel, which is entered through an exquisite arch, has a beautiful memorial window to the Welsh Fusiliers who have fallen in battle.
